Special to The Standard-Examiner (Copyright, 1922, by The Standard-Examiner).

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Ct. the face of things the threat of another wai growing out of Turkish ambitions for the recovery of Thrace, the Greek revolution and the determination of England to retain the fruits of the allied victory would seem to have been the overshadowing consideration in the financial situation during the last week. The practical vew is that it has simply fitted in with other influences which by themselves would have caused the same series of changes in the various markets. Apparently it has been a greater factor in the sterling exchange movement than any, where eise, and yet the decline in sterling of 13 cents in the pound from the high of a month ago could easily have resulted along customary pressure of commercial bills drawn against purchases of our grain and cotton.

Professional Wall street is unanimous in saying that the stock market would have had to go through the adjustment it has, regardless of the out side news.

GOVERNMENT FINANCING

The political troubles in Europe have added to the restraints upon the investment market but the real real son why bond prices have been slipping for the last fortnight is the uncertainty regarding the forthcoming United States government loan. Wall street sees in this the first of a scries of similar transactions, the object of which will be to fund the $4,000,000.

may be removed and concrete highways laid in their place. Many roads have parallel lines today under their control. The wise railroad company will develop one of these for itself and will sell the other at a good price to the state for a concrete truck highway. Frankly, I would rather take my chances with concrete securities than with railroad securities bought indscriminately. Therefore, in taking any tips from Wall street to buy railway securities use great discrimination to select those which cannot be adversely affected by a great development in trucking or those whose management is far-signified enough to reduce their mileage to only not be adversely affected by a great development in trucking or those whose management is far-sighted enough to reduce their mileage to only such as is profitable, selling the rest for trucking highways."
